Crash Program Effective Report Area Authorities

Law enforcement and civic officials of the Southwest cities this week agreed that a crash program to quell juvenile violence has had positive and encouraging effects.

The program, formulated early last month at an emergency meeting of the area's law enforcement officials called by Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, includes strict enforcement of the 10 p.m. curfew laws and increased activity in the area by the County Probation Department.

Coordinating Councils and other civic groups, and an educational program utilizing films and school programs to emphasize standards of personal conduct for teen-agers.

really get at the root of teen-age trouble."

The program was initiated after the beating of Ronald Barnett in May. Civic authorities agreed that the crash program had served its initial purpose, but emphasized that there is no reason to "slacken up" on enforcement just because teen-age problems have subsided.

TORRANCE POLICE reported that the curfew crackdown is getting youngsters off the streets at a time when they are most apt to get into trouble. City manager Wade Peebles said the over-all program has been "very beneficial."

Similar reports were given by other area officials.

The long-range plans call for closer cooperation between police authorities, school officials, and the Probation Department, active participation and backing of the community

Names Area PR Chairman

'Seven-Year Itch' Cast, Crew Begin Rehearsals

Chapel Theatre once again is in full swing as the cast and crew of the forthcoming production of "The Seven-Year Itch," bands together to prepare for opening night July 20.

Scenery, costumes, and an assortment of props are being put together, and rehearsals are underway. The play will open Friday, July 20, at the theater, 4164 Pacific Coast Hwy., and run for four weekends.

LARRY G. BOYD, drama teacher in Redondo Beach, will direct the production. Frank Herman, better known as TV's "Skipper Frank," will portray the leading role.

"Seven Year Itch," written by George Axelrod, was a Broadway hit and more recently was made into a popular movie.

The popular comedy is about a man who suddenly finds himself a bachelor for the summer after seven years of married life. All goes well until the bachelor's imagination runs away with him after meeting The Girl Upstairs.

Reservations may be made by calling the theater box office. Tickets are $1.50 for Friday and Sunday performances, and $1.75 for Saturdays.
